

Sonoma Valley Sun

Vol. VII, Issue 52

Thursday April 14, 2011

What's cooking in Sonoma?

I've got a heaping scoop of fresh food news for you this week Sonoma Valley. After closing for quick renovations last week, the Ledson's Harmony Lounge on the Plaza has reopened as Centre du Vin. The incredibly inviting indoor-outdoor space now sports classic French bistro décor such as the token red awning, boxwood planters and comfy wicker seating. The small plates menu has also received a welcome facelift thanks to Francois de Tessen of the late La Poste. Find a hand written menu of simple, but elegant fare, such as an unadorned butter lettuce salad, a lovely smoked salmon plate, a traditional toasty croquet monsieur, a cheese plate and more. The whole scene is a chic addition to the Plaza... a perfect spot for whiling away a sun-filled afternoon, glass of Lillet in hand. Live music Fridays return in May. Open Daily noon to 9ish.